 WILDLIFE RESEARCH INSTITUTE

The Wildlife Research Institute is conducting the longest and most in-depth bear study ever done. In recognizing this study as one of the four major studies of large mammals in the world, Harvard University Professor E.O. Wilson wrote, "A new level of resolution has been attained, in which free-ranging individuals are tracked from birth through socialization, parturition, and death, and their idiosyncrasies, personal alliances, and ecological relationships recorded in clinical detail."
